At the request of the office of Senator Wiley, I talked with [redacted] of New York City. [redacted] is an amateur student of Communism and a writer, and she has developed a general analysis of the world situation. She has forwarded a copy of this to Senator Wiley and has authorized me to secure a copy from the Senator. It is in effect her estimate of the situation. I pointed out to her that what she in effect had developed was an intelligence estimate and that now she was interested in following it into the policy phases. I explained that we had no policy functions in CIA and that she might best use her contacts with the Senator for this purpose.

She informed me that she had some very good sources in [redacted] particularly one source whom she described as "top drawer", whose uncle had been in love with her some 30 or 40 years ago and that this had therefore created a bond between them. She stated that this source also appeared to have connections with the [redacted] [redacted] agreed to pass on to us any special information which she would receive, and I stated that I would make arrangements to have a place which she could call and turn over any information for transmission to me in Washington. (Subsequently [redacted] stated that the [redacted] office would make the arrangements).

[redacted] appears to be an extremely bright and intelligent woman, although somewhat aligned to the extreme right.
